

Report of Operative G T Purdy

Sept. 9th, 1926

RE: MRS. GIBSON

Operative went to Hoboken, N.J., to obtain information regarding the arrest of one Rose Gleitzman for robbery which was committed in New York. Went to Police Headquarters and learned that a detective named Sullivan has charge of the records which are locked in a vault and that he was home ill today. Therefore, unable to obtain the desired record, which Mr. Messingkop stated would contain some information about May Ray. Operative was given the name and address of Mr. Gutheil, who was formerly in the Hoboken Police Department.

Operative interviewed Mr. Gutheil, who stated that he remembers the name of Gleitzman, who was a girl arrested by a detective named Weinthal. He gave me Mr. Weinthal's address as 150 Claremont Ave., Montclair, N.J.

Operative then went to 602 First St., but could not locate anyone there who remembered May Ray or a store which was occupied by an intelligence agency. After making many inquiries in this neighborhood Operative then proceeded to Montclair, N.J.

Went to the home of Louis Weinthal, 150 Claremont Ave and interviewed him. He stated that he could not remember the arrest at all, but that he kept records of all his arrests since he was made a detective up until the time he retired from the department and that those books were at his son's home in the other end of the town and suggested I get a taxie and we go there. We did so and then returned to 150 Claremont Ave., where we very carefully went over these books. His first record is in 1898 and I am sure that this arrest took place in 1897 or 1896. I tried to refresh his memory, but it was very poor and he was not able to remember a single thing about the arrest. He was not able to furnish any further information, so Operative returned to Hoboken in an
